policy regarding the Uyghurs - an ethnic group of Muslims who live in China. The government of China has created concentration camps and wants to "educate" the Uyghurs to be good citizens of China, which basically means committing genocide against this ethnic group. Do you think that boycott of the Olympics is something that could help raise awareness of the Uyghurs and what they have to face in China? In general are sports and politics connected? Have they got any influence on each other? And should they? Do you think it's fair not to watch the Olympics in this case? Or is sport beyond politics?
